1. Introduction:

a. Introduction:

Georgia Federation was at war with the Monroe Republic at some point, back when Miles Matheson was still in charge of the Monroe Militia.

When there was a thread of a nuclear bomb at the Georgia Federation from the Monroe and Monroe Republic used the power against Georgia Federation, Georgia Federation sent their troops to Monroe Republic to fight against the Militia and stop them from using the power for their own benefits.

b. Definition of Key Words:

Black-Out: The Blackout was an artificially-caused apocalyptic event occurring in September 2012. The event disabled all forms of electricity.

The night of the Blackout was originally a combat test on a Taliban-controlled compound in Pakistan, but a malfunction in the command execution of the Nanites caused an unprecedented worldwide loss of power.

Militia: The Monroe Militia is the force that controls the Monroe Republic, it serves as the army, police and secret police of the Republic. It operates with impunity in an area that includes the wreckage of Chicago, Illinois and several other cities. The name suggests that it was organized by Sebastian Monroe, although he was in Port Royal, South Carolina at the time of The Blackout.

Pendants: The Pendant is an item which enables any electrical device to once again function as it did before The Blackout.

Each pendant has a limited range of 9 to 10 feet, but will affect all electrical devices in that areas. 12 total pendants exist. Internally, each has a male USB port, with a portion that detaches like a flash drive. They also each send out tracking and activity signals that may be monitored remotely.

2. Body:

Sometime after the Blackout, Sebastian Monroe and Miles Matheson together established the Monroe Republic as a way to police the ruins of America after being plunged into chaos. Miles assumed the post of Commanding General of the Militia, while Monroe dealt with the political side of things.

While life within the Republic's borders tends to be rather unforgiving, the quality of life for the average citizen deteriorates rapidly west of Pittsburgh to third world conditions, as there are many rebel attacks, smugglers bringing people into the Republic illegally, and bandits.

The Monroe Republic has attempted diplomatic relations with the California Commonwealth in the past, but their emissaries seldom return. The Monroe Republic is almost to the point of open war with the Georgia Federation and the Plains Nation, possibly due to resentment of the former's successful economy and the latter's alliance with the former. Miles Matheson also expressed heavy disdain for the nation of Texas, indicating a hostile relationship between the Monroe Republic and Texas. It is unknown if the Monroe Republic is in contact with any nations overseas. While there may be legitimate reasons for the Monroe Republic's isolation from the rest of America, the driving force is Monroe's personal lust for power and his desire to conquer the entire continent.

15 years after the Blackout the Georgia Federation has allied with the Plains Nation in a planned assault on the Monroe Republic. Colonel Faber reported that the Federation was just days away from an all-out war with the Republic. The Georgia Federation is run by President Kelly Foster from its capital, Atlanta. Unlike the Monroe Republic, the Georgia Federation has a civilian government that commands the armed forces. The country also has a well structured judicial system. Citizens of the Georgia Federation enjoy a large array of personal freedoms that include equality, free market economics, and protection. Unlike the Monroe Republic, the Georgian government administers to all of their citizens without the use of armed intimidation; enforcing the rule of law through legitimate governance.

The President of the Georgia Federation serves as the Head of State, Head of Government, Chief Diplomat, and Commander in Chief. The President operates a cabinet for delegation and advisory purposes. Since Georgia is a federation, they likely have political divisions, with the central government having the most authority.

Georgia has a large agricultural economy due to their warmer climate. They can grow a wider variety of foods for longer, and as such are able to sell more and have a larger economy. They have a much more advanced civilian infrastructure than the Monroe Republic, such as a public transportation system that uses steam-powered school buses as well as personal motorized vehicles, such as motorcycles. Therefore, the roads throughout the country are well maintained. The Federation is very wealthy both in terms of national product and individual income. They have developed a trade network with England, indicating that the country has a merchant marine fleet, likely powered by steam as well. Unlike the Monroe Republic, the Georgia Federation has massive cities like Atlanta and empowers their citizens through economics. The standard of living in Georgia is much higher as seen by the majority of well-fed, clean, well-dressed, and wealthy citizens. According to Miles, the Georgia Federation also traded with Europe, meaning they used tall ships or steamers to get there.

The Georgia Federation utilizes many forms of steam technology such as Steam Buses, Steam Boats and steam motorbikes.

3. Conclusion:

a. Possible Solutions:

The conflict between Monroe Republic and Georgia Federation has been going on for a long time and it is ruining the possible peace of the United States.

To end the conflict and get over the hardships, two nations should work together and find a way that will make both of them satisfied.
